TIMELY BREVITIES

The sterilization of water by ultra violet rays has now entered upon an industrial stage.

Last year there were 5,206 trials by court martial in the army as against 5,580 the previous year.

The largest stalactite cave in Europe recently was discovered in the Dackstein mountains of upper Austria.

Survey bonds cannot be procured in Boulder, there being no company in that country doing that class of business.

The lord mayor of London said recently that in his opinion the old English system of apprenticeship should be revived.

Experiments with thousands of subjects have shown that the average man attains his maximum strength in his thirty-first year.

The vibration of a steel disk 30,000 times or more a second produces the sound in a new electrical horn for automobiles or motorboats.

Scotland exported 1,531 Clydesdale horses in 1910. This is said to be a record never before reached by any breed of British live stock.

Expansion due to the heat of the sun gives the top of the Eiffel tower daily motion of from one to seven inches, varying with the seasons.

Numerous garage fires have shown that automobile tires, after they have been hardened by contact with mud and water, practically are fireproof.

There are large guano deposits on some islands between China and the Philippines, but apparently nothing can be done to make them profitable.

Cesary, the great German cancer expert, says skin cancer has diminished 50 per cent at least in the last fifty years. He thinks soap did the blessed business.

It is regarded as a sign of the steady disappearance of the sailing craft that the rotunda at the second or third floor of the present persons on the main floor being injured by others jumping or falling from upper floors of the structures.

Her Harry Plate of Hannover has been made a lifetime member of the Prussian upper chamber by special favor of the kaiser. Plate is a master plumber. The honor bestowed on him has never before been awarded to an ordinary artisan. It is traditionally given to noblemen as a reward for eminent service to the state. Her Plate is a labor leader, but an anti-Socialist.

Mrs. Caroline A. White of Upper Norwood, England, who has just passed the one hundredth anniversary of her birthday, has been for eighty years of her life an industrious literary worker. For sixteen years she edited a woman's journal. Early in her career she obtained introductions to Tom Hood and Douglas Jerrold and afterward never lacked employment for her pen.

King Manuel will make Richmond, England, his new home. He has taken Abercorn, a residence built forty years ago, from Kild Sir Harry Maclean.
 Abercorn stands in the center of a four acre tract, and its privacy is doubly secured by a high brick wall and numerous trees. There are only two floors to the house, which is unpretentious and comfortable. The grounds include two tennis courts, a charming rearing, fruit and flower gardens.

When setting hens it is never advisable to apply any grease to their bodies, but they may be dusted with some good insect powder, while the nests may be dusted with powdered lime or sulphur. As soon as a sitting hen comes off the nest should be buried out and fresh nest material supplied. At all seasons of the year it is a good plan to burn out all nests every four or five weeks.

Foot Rot in Sheep.
 Sheep afflicted with foot rot should be kept separate from the balance of the flock and have clean, dry quarters.
 Drive them through a foot bath three times a week made of creolin 3 per cent or iron sulphate 4 per cent and lime slaked with water, mixed into a creamy substance.

Profit in Draft Mares.
 We keep six heavy mares to do our farm work—two three-horse teams.
 All of these mares are bred to the best stallion we can find near home, and we usually get two or three colts a year, writes a New York farmer in the American Agriculturist. All of the mares are bred and raised about the same until foaling time, when those that have colts need about ten days' rest. Then they may begin work again, only with a little better feed and care. After the colt is weaned he can be grown almost as cheaply as a calf and if well fed at two years old should weigh from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds and can begin to pay his way by working.

Poultry Notes.
 There are many pet theories on how to make the hen lay profitably, but here is the secret in a few words: Feed her well, house her comfortably and keep her free from lice.

The large producing hen is the result of careful care and effort upon the part of her owner.
 You can't expect profits from the hens unless you feed them right and give good care generally.

The hen that is confined in a damp house or must stand on a damp floor will never lay profitably.
 The chickens need plenty of sharp grit or gravel. It's what keeps their teeth in commission.

KEEPING POULTRY
LICE IN CHECK
Dust Baths Should Be Provided and Houses Sprayed.

Lice may be found on the bodies of fowls at all seasons of the year. They multiply very rapidly in warm weather, and it is then that the greatest damage is done.

There are several insect enemies of poultry—lice, mites and fleas. It is the red mite into which is worse than all the others combined. This minute creature increases at a remarkable rate when measures are not taken to keep it in check, and hens will not lay if chickens grow when their life-blood is being sucked by this pest.

There are a number of all insects, especially the soft bodied ones. The fowls should therefore be provided with a dust bath at all times, as this is the method nature has given them of keeping at bay their insect enemies. Dry and finely pulverized earth of any kind, also coal ashes from which the clinders have been sifted, may be used for the dust bath. Wood ashes should never be used, as the alkali in them is likely to injure the fowls.

A thorough drenching of the poultry house with kerosene emulsion to which a little crude carbolic acid has been added will prove very effective against the red mites if done every week.
 Ordinary melted lard is good in destroying lice on the bodies of fowls and chicks, but should not be used too freely.
